

Ailanthus altissima (tree of heaven) was introduced from China in 1784 and has become arguably the top invasive species in Virginia. It is fast-growing and prolific, crowding out native plants or inhibiting their growth with allelopathic chemicals. It also is host to the invasive and destructive spotted lanternfly now spreading across the Mid-Atlantic.

© Elaine Mills